

Open Access and Copyright Policy

Open Access Policy

IPVarna Law Review operates under a fully open access model, making all published articles freely and immediately available to the global academic community and the public without any subscription or paywall barriers. This approach supports the unrestricted dissemination of knowledge and promotes wider visibility and impact of the research published in the field of Intellectual Property Law.

Licensing and Copyright

All articles published by IPVarna Law Review are licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International License (CC BY-NC-ND 4.0). This license permits others to download and share the work non-commercially, as long as proper credit is given to the original authors and the journal, but prohibits modifications or derivative works.

Authors assign copyright ownership of their work to IPVarna Law Review upon acceptance for publication. The journal holds exclusive rights to publish the article in both digital and print formats. However, authors retain the right to use their work for non-commercial purposes, including sharing it on personal or institutional platforms, provided proper attribution to IPVarna Law Review is maintained. This arrangement allows the journal to manage and disseminate the content widely while respecting the authors' ongoing academic use of their research.